Nationalism and Moral: The Normative Questions of the Nation

Pål Veiden is the Associate Professor in social policy and sociology at the Oslo University. He is doing research on the topics of comparative sociology.

Nation and nationalism raises many questions, not at least normative ones. How can one define and defend nationalism without becoming nationalist? One approach was proposed by Tomas Garrigue Masaryk, who outlined the normative questions of the nation and nationalism in his academic work. The lecture will present some theses of Masaryk's general sociology and his view on the meaning of history. It will also comment upon Masaryk's position in the history of Czech sociology.
